US election results not favoured by dentists

Seventy per cent think a McCain presidency would have been better for the profession

LEIPZIG, Germany/NAN FRAN-CISCO, CA, USA: According to a recent survey, US dentists might be disappointed by the Democratic win in the US elections last month. Two out of three dentists surveyed in a poll by dental practice marketing resource The Healthy Dentist said that former Republican nominee John McCain would be a better president for dentists. One in six favoured Obama, while the remainder said there would be no difference between the two.

Illinois Senator Barack Obama won the recent US presidential election against John McCain by 565 to 173 votes. He will take office from incumbent president George W. Bush in January next year. In a Democrat radio address in November, he announced the development of a plan that will create 2.5 million jobs by 2011—“a plan big enough to meet the challenges we face that I intend to sign into law,” he promised.

Obama, while the remainder said there would be no difference between the two.

Many poor and lower-middle-class families in the US do not receive adequate care, in part because most dentists want customers who can pay in cash or have private insurance. The lack of dental care is also not restricted to the poor and their children, recent data show. Experts on oral health say that about 100 million Americans have no access to care. Most dentists, however, believe that a Republican would have been better for the economy. “Due to higher taxes by Obama, there will be less money to spend on dentistry,” griped a Louisiana dentist. “Obama will be a disaster, raising costs for employers and decreasing patient service,” agreed a New Jersey dentist. “There will be less elective cosmetic services as the economy goes downhill!”

Dentists were concerned about tax issues. “Obama is a classic Robin Hood Democrat: tax the people who work to create wealth, and redistribute it to the masses,” said a Florida dentist. “The last thing I need is higher taxes,” said a California periodontist.

More nurses for Malaysia

Malaysia has signed a MOU with 24 institutions in the country, in which these institutions agree to use Ministry of Health facilities for nursing, dental, and health sciences education programmes. Through the agreement, the ministry hopes to improve the nurse/patient ratio to 1:200 by 2015.

Bad breath linked to cancer

New research from Japan has found that the bacterium Helicobacter pylori, a main cause of stomach ulcers and cancer, lives in the mouths of some people who have bad breath but no signs of stomach illness. The bacterium is carried by over 90 per cent of people in the developing world.

Australia, NZ consider fluoridation

BARTON, Australia/WELLINGTON, New Zealand: Australia and New Zealand are considering approving the voluntary addition of fluoride to bottled water. Reports went public after Coca-Cola Amatil and the Australian Dental Association quarrelled over a print advertising campaign that was adding furoate to parent’s fears about the negative effects of soft drink consumption on their children.

Food Standards Australia New Zealand has now released a report for public comment that proposes amending the Australia New Zealand Food Standards Code. Should the organisation approve the sale of bottled water containing added fluoride, it will be a voluntary permission allowing manufacturers to add fluoride under the conditions of the Code.
