  “Many orofacial injuries during sports are preventable”
  In 1998, Orlando Magic center Adonal Foyle took an elbow from Utah Jazz’s Quincy Lewis to teeth Nos. 8 and 9, causing the teeth to luxate back. In 2001, Dallas Mavericks’ Dirk Nowitzki was elbowed by San Antonio Spur Terry Porter and tooth No. 8 was knocked out. In 2005, Mavericks’ ...
  The list goes on and on, and this is only the NBA. We don’t have enough space to delineate all the dental injuries hockey players have endured.

• Implantology
  “Avoiding the pitfalls of implants with 5-D imaging”
  Once only a solution for the rich and famous, dental implants have become a popular option for people across all economic categories. Along with the popularization of this procedure, while implants were usually delegated to specialists, technology such as in-office cone-beam scans and digital imaging allow general practitioners to offer this type of service while also avoiding the pitfalls that result from a lack of precise information.

• Endodontics
  “Predictable apical microsurgery: Patient preparation (Part 1)”
  Surgery will never replace solid endodontic principles and should always be a last resort. Apical microsurgery consists of nine basic steps that must be completely performed in their proper order so we can achieve the desired result for our efforts.

• Practice management
  “To retire or not to retire?”
  I am a 1965 graduate of NYU College of Dentistry, and I practiced until 2000. I was 58 at the time and was somehow bent on retiring in my late or middle 50s when most people thought that way.
  Social security was available at age 62 then, and the average age men lived to was 66. My dad died at that age and so did most of my friends’ fathers. Thus, I figured I could have a good 10 years to live the “really good life.” Boy has that changed.
