ADHA backs oral health program that serves primary care providers

In the third year of its Pros in the Profession awards program, Crest + Oral-B is recognizing outstanding registered dental hygienists who demonstrate excellent patient care, a passion for the profession and a dedication to learning. The award acknowledges the pivotal role these hygienists play in their patients’ lives — and their unwavering personal commitment to promoting good oral health in their communities.

“We have seen extraordinary entries over the past several years, which is why we must continue to honor those hygienists whose passion shine through in their everyday work,” said John Scarchilli, global scientific communications director, Procter & Gamble Oral Care. “These individuals dedicate countless hours to furthering the oral health cause, so we are pleased to be able to applaud them publicly.”

Three winners have already been named: Michelle Vacha, Heather Steich and Mallory Edmondson — and a fourth winner will be named soon. While earning the honor in her own unique way, each winner shares the same devotion to promoting and participating in good oral care for patients.

Michelle Vacha, RDH, BS, received her degrees from Northern Arizona University and has been practicing in Colorado Springs, Colo., for the past 24 years. “I am so honored to be receiving this award,” said Vacha about being named a winner for year three. “I am hoping the attention from it will bring awareness to the public and other hygienists who care for older adults. Through my work, I help seniors deal with specific health factors they face due to lack of dental support. We want to ensure that all of the good work that has been done to maintain oral health throughout life is also preserved once insurance is no longer available through retirement or fixed income.”

Heather Steich, RDH, received her degree at the University of the Pacific, Arthur A. Dugoni School of Dentistry, and has been practicing in San Francisco for the past five years. “I will be taking my second oral health service/mission trip to Honduras this year,” said Steich about winning $1,000. “Last year I used my own funds for the trip, but this year I plan on using the award toward the expenses of the trip. In effect, the award will be going back to the community I love to serve!”

Mallory Edmondson, RDH, BS, received her degrees from Indiana University South Bend for her BSDH, and is currently at the University of Bridgeport Fones School of Dental Hygiene for her MSDH. She has been practicing in Merrillville, Ind., for the past two years. “My favorite aspect of dental hygiene is the limitless opportunities available within the profession,” said Edmondson about being an RDH. “We are educators, managers, practitioners and much more. Hygienists are able to adapt to any given situation and apply their knowledge and skill sets far beyond the dental chair.”

About Pros in the Profession

Crest + Oral-B is rewarding four RDH winners with an enhanced prize of and other professionals have used the materials to enrich their clinical understanding of oral health issues and form partnerships for the benefit of their patients. The curriculum also enables a wider network of health professionals to access quality oral health information and education at no cost. This greater awareness has the potential for increased collaboration between health professionals and, ultimately, improved oral health outcomes for the public.

ADHA understands how essential collaborative partnerships are to linking oral health and total health,” said ADHA President Dr. Denise Bowers. “Smiles for Life gives current and future health care professionals a strong foundation in oral care and is committed to maintaining relevance in a changing health care landscape.”

ADHA joins the numerous organizations that have endorsed the efforts of Smiles for Life, including the American Academy of Pediatrics, the American Dental Association, the Society of Teachers of Family Medicine and the American Academy of Family Physicians.
